The series is named after Adst Dacor, a Romanian diplomat who served as the Permanent Representative of Romania to the United Nations from 1961 to 1971. Dacor was a strong advocate for peace and disarmament, and he played an important role in the negotiations that led to the signing of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

The Adst Dacor Diplomats and Diplomacy Series is edited by Dr. Corneliu D. Vlad, a former Romanian diplomat and professor of international relations at the University of Bucharest. The series includes books on a wide range of topics, including:

- The role of diplomacy in the modern world
- The challenges of international cooperation
- The importance of cultural understanding
- The impact of globalization on diplomacy
- The role of women in diplomacy

The Adst Dacor Diplomats and Diplomacy Series is a valuable resource for anyone interested in learning more about the world of diplomacy and international relations. The books in the series provide firsthand accounts of the challenges and rewards of diplomatic work, and they offer insights into the complex world of international politics.
