

Mom Turning Me Into Girl: A Desperate Plea for Help

My name is John, and I'm a 16-year-old boy. I'm writing this because I don't know what else to do. My mom is forcing me to live as a girl, and I don't know how to make her stop.

It all started when I was about 12 years old. I started feeling like something was wrong with me. I didn't feel like a boy, and I didn't want to be treated like one. I didn't understand what was happening, but I knew that I couldn't tell anyone how I felt.

One day, my mom found me crying in my room. She asked me what was wrong, and I told her that I didn't feel like a boy. She seemed shocked and confused, but she listened to me. I told her that I wanted to be a girl, and she just hugged me and said that she loved me no matter what.

I was so relieved that my mom accepted me, but I didn't know what that meant for my future. I didn't want to live as a girl, but I didn't want to disappoint my mom either.

We went to see a therapist, and the therapist told me that I was transgender. I was still confused, but I was also starting to understand myself better. The therapist helped me to come out to my friends and family, and they were all very supportive.

But my mom wasn't supportive. She said that she didn't believe in transgenderism, and that I was just confused. She said that I would grow out of it, and that I needed to stop acting like a girl.

I tried to explain to her that I wasn't confused, and that I really was transgender. But she wouldn't listen. She started to treat me like a girl, even though I didn't want her to. She made me wear dresses and skirts, and she told me to act more feminine.

I felt like I was losing my mind. I didn't know who I was anymore. I didn't want to be a girl, but I didn't want to disappoint my mom either.

I don't know what to do anymore. I'm scared and confused, and I feel like I'm losing my mind. I need help.
